

P036295/WO/1

DaimlerChrysler AG

Abstract

The invention relates to a safety system for operating at least one electrically operated locking device of a door of a vehicle.

According to the invention, an electric opening blockage of the locking device is dependent on sensor values which are related to the driving situation and indicate an impact.